

13 questions to ask before your first GLP-1 appointment

Print it, screenshot it, or just keep it open on your phone. Bring it with you.

FROM A PHYSICIAN ASSISTANT WHO'S BEEN ON ONE HERSELF

Appointments are short, and it's easy to walk out realizing you forgot to ask the thing you actually came in for. You're allowed to ask all thirteen. A good prescriber won't mind a single one — and how they answer tells you a lot.

BEFORE YOU START

- 1 Which medication are you starting me on, and why that one for me specifically?
- 2 What dose am I starting at, and what does the plan look like for increasing it?
- 3 How quickly do you move people up, and what happens if I don't tolerate a step?

SAFETY

- 4 What side effects should I expect in the first month — and which ones mean I call you the same day?
- 5 Is anything I'm already taking going to interact with this?
- 6 What labs do you want before I start, and how often after?

THE PART MOST PEOPLE DON'T ASK

- 7 What's my protein target while I'm losing?
- 8 Do you want me doing resistance training, and how much?
- 9 What do we do if I plateau?

THE PRACTICAL STUFF NOBODY WARNS YOU ABOUT

- 10 What happens if my insurance denies it, or drops coverage partway?

- 11 What does stopping look like — what's the plan when I come off?
- 12 Who do I contact between appointments, and how fast do they usually get back?
- 13 How often do we check in to re-evaluate my progress?

If you only ask one, make it #13. Every other question is about starting. That one is about whether anybody is still paying attention six months from now — and the answer tells you whether you've found real care or just a prescription.

Educational only. This is not medical advice and it isn't a substitute for your own provider's judgment — they know your history and I don't. Nothing here recommends any specific medication, dose, or program.

Made by @diary_of_the_most_okayest_mom · physician assistant ·